Drambuie

Prince Charlie's Liqueur

The origin of "DRAMBUIE" and the basis of its production give it a character distinct from other Liqueurs.

Brought to Scotland by a follower of Prince Charlie in 1745, the recipe has ever since remained in one family. The MacKinnon of that day employed the materials which were available, and in place of Brandy a fine old Whisky was used. This, along with heather honey and herbal ingredients of recognised value as aids to digestion produced a Liqueur which soon gained the post of honour on the tables of Highland Aristocracy, and is now known world-wide.

GEN. SU AGREES TO NEGOTIATE

WITH JAPANESE AND MANCHUKUO DELEGATES

(THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY.)

SHANGHAI, Nov. 30. GEN. SU PING WEN has definitely agreed to negotiate with the Japanese, according to Japanese reports from Mukden which state that he has suggested that Hailar instead of Matzevskaya be the venue of the conference. Accordingly the Japanese and Manchukuo delegates at Matzevskaya immediately left for Hailar.

FIGHTING IN MANCHURIA

JAPANESE VANGUARD IN ACTION

(THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY.)

HARBIN, Nov. 30. THE vanguard of a powerful Japanese army are skirmishing with the outposts of the Chinese volunteer units to the west of Fullard. A big battle is possibly already in progress. At least it is very imminent. The Japanese objective is stated to be Chienan, while the Volunteers are reported to be holding particularly strong positions in the path of the advance. Volunteers have placed thousands of rifles in deep trenches in the foothills and fortified their positions with forward gunpits. On both flanks of the main position are strong bodies of cavalry and against these forces, out of the valley lands, the Japanese must climb to the attack.

EXPORT OF TEXTILES

MARKED INCREASE IN 1932

(BRITISH WIRELESS SERVICE.)

RUSSIA, Nov. 29. BRITISH exports of cotton, artificial silk and mixed piece-goods continue to expand. For the first ten months of this year, they totalled 38,284,172 square yards, valued at £1,633,792, an increase of 6,790,315 square yards, valued at £122,227, over the corresponding period of last year.

U.S.A. PRODUCTS RISE IN PRICE

SEQUEL TO AMERICAN ATTACK ON POUND

(BRITISH WIRELESS SERVICE.)

RUSSIA, Nov. 29. THE fact that American wheat was yesterday priced at 28s. 9d. a quarter is cited by the Times as indicating the effect on United States produce of exchange movements making the dollar dear in relation to sterling.

Argentine wheat at 94s. Australia at 22s. 6d. and Canadian at 95s. were all considerably cheaper than United States wheat, despite the fact that the United States is only 3,000 miles distant compared with Argentina 6,000 miles and Australia 11,000 miles.

The Times points out that the influence of exchange must also be shown in the prices of all other commodities in which the United States competes with various producing countries.

Further Fall in Sterling.

Sterling on New York to-day recovered at the opening to 3.19, but fell later to 3.14, closing at 3.16. Despite the pound's weakness, British funds finished the day strongly, under the lead of War Loan Assent, which rose over one point to 97.

TREATY OF NON-AGGRESSION SIGNED

(THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY.)

PARIS, Nov. 29. A PACT of Non-Aggression was signed between France and Soviet Russia at the Quai d'Orsay to-day. The signatories were M. Herriot on behalf of the French Government, and M. S. RADIO CORPORATION OF AMERICA

INVOLVED IN BIGGEST TRUST SUIT

Wilmington, Del., Nov. 13.—Action in one of the greatest legal battles in the history of American jurisprudence was ordered postponed until Monday when attorneys for the Federal Government and the Radio Corporation of America appeared before the United States District Court to-day.

Continuance of the suit with the consequent postponement of hearings until Monday was moved by the Government. Belief now prevails that the case will never go to trial since the continuance gives the Radio Corporation of America opportunity to arrange a settlement out of court.

If the case does go to trial a gigantic radio trust, said by the Government to control 90 per cent. of the country's radio industry in addition to restraining domestic and foreign commerce and communications, will be forced to defend its corporate existence.

The case, involving the Radio Corporation of America and its allied companies with assets of $15,000,000,000 and controlling more than 4,000 patents in radio, will be the greatest anti-trust suit ever undertaken by the Federal Government. The defendants in the suit, the Government charges, have monopolistic contracts with a number of foreign governments which in reality serve to restrain trade and communications within and outside the United States. The Government contends the trust not only monopolizes the radio receiving apparatus field but extends also into the manufacturing of talking picture equipment, X-rays, radio communications and numerous household devices.

Fourteen companies compose the group of defendants, which are said to be allied through stock ownership and binding agreements which, the Government alleges, provide for a general pooling of radio patents to such an extent that a monopoly has been created.

BRITISH R'WAY EXTENDS USE OF RADIO ON TRAINS

The London and North Eastern Railway's London-Leeds Express, the first British radio-equipped train, installed in 1930, has proven so successful that the railway is now equipping two of its Scottish expresses with improved apparatus. Sockets to which headphones, with volume control attachments, may be connected are installed above each passenger's seat in the dining cars and coaches, passengers being supplied with headphones at a charge of 1 shilling per passenger. The central receiver is installed in the baggage coach, with power supplied from the train lighting circuit. To permit freedom in tuning in to new stations as the train progresses, two receivers are installed as a unit with a special switch. The sets themselves are designed to correct difficulties arising from the screening effect of buildings and trees, as are aerials along the car roofs to avoid interference from telegraph lines parallel to the right of way.

ANOTHER GIANT BROADCASTER

Bamberg is the latest name to conjure with in European radio circles. Bamberg, says "The Wireless World," is the village near Vienna which is to become famous on account of the 130 kilowatt broadcasting station now being erected at that spot. It is stated that tests may be started before the end of the year.

RADIO FROM SPACE

DR. BARNES AWAITS STAR MESSAGE

An amazing hint of a radio message from intelligent planet dwellers in some far-off star system was given recently by Dr. Barnes, the "scientist" Bishop of Birmingham.

"We may find elsewhere in the universe teachers willing to give us their knowledge. I am certain that there are many stars to which life-bearing planets are attached," he said, in a Birmingham Institute speech.

"It is not merely possible but probable that in the course of time man will, by means of some variant of wireless, get into communication with intelligent beings on far-distant planets.

Epoch of Marvels.

"What a marvellous epoch will then begin! If even the accumulated human knowledge of the next ten thousand years were to burst suddenly upon us we should be dazzled, exhilarated, entranced.

"But if beings of an animal type, possibly quite different from anything we can imagine, should convey to us knowledge won by minds immeasurably transcending our own in power, we should be transformed."

Dr. Barnes suggested that man might almost live for ever.

"He might even, by conquering the minute organisms which carry disease, prolong almost indefinitely his time upon earth," he said. "In the near future it should be possible, by preventing the reproduction of the less satisfactory human stocks, considerably to improve the quality of any selected population.

Chance of Horrors.
The bishop saw a chance of horrors.

"Civilisation may easily decay. We shall have a sort of recovery following each grave crisis. But on each occasion recovery will be on a lower level.

"At successive stages medicine will be a little less rational; religion a little more barbarised; amusements more vulgar and insane; the intellectually weaker strains in the community somewhat more numerous. So the decline to the Dark Ages will take place."

But the bishop believed firmly in man's destiny.

Know Your Radio Set.

Everyone who owns a wireless set should have a certain amount of technical knowledge. Even with so robust a piece of mechanism as a car, few motorists would feel satisfied to drive without at least a working knowledge of the mechanism.

To assist listeners in tracing and remedying the little faults which occasionally occur in the best radio receivers, "The Wireless World" urges that every set should be accompanied by as detailed a description of the receiver as possible, with hints which will help towards curing minor radio ailments.

Most manufacturers give some sort of guarantee with their receivers, but it is unreasonable for the purchaser to expect service, free of charge, for the period of the guarantee, and most manufacturers have themselves given up the attempt to give it.

It is a very difficult matter to say just where a manufacturer's responsibility should stop, and to decide, too, when the expectations of the purchaser in regard to service exceed the bounds of reason. It is most desirable that both parties should study to be fair.

RADIO SKYSCRAPER MURALS

TO MARK AGE OF THINKERS

New York, Oct. 11.—The swing of civilization from geographical frontiers to the inward, upward frontiers in the thinking of each human being is to be the theme of the nine great panels which will constitute the sole artistic embellishment of the new 70-story RCA building.

Three internationally known artists are to be the painters, Frank Brangwyn of England; Diego Rivera of Mexico and Jose Maria Sert of Spain, the first foreigners to win awards from the Rockefeller Centre development. The first sketches are to be ready on Dec. 1 and the finished murals are to be delivered early in April. Mr. Brangwyn will work at his studio in Ditchling, Sussex, Eng. Sert will produce his four panel at his studio in Paris, and Sert Rivera is to execute his commission in Detroit, where he is at present engaged by the Museum of Art.

Architects and builders have planned an unusual layout for the great corridor, 150 feet long, 100 feet wide and 25 feet high, which offers the largest single expanse in Rockefeller Centre for the interpretation of its ornamental theme. The floor will be laid in black terrazzo. The outer walls will be constructed of Champlain black marble from the top to a height of 7½ feet, the remainder of the walls and ceiling to be in a deep ivory tone.

which is expected to serve as a foil for the panels.

The nine murals are to emphasize spiritual qualities in the "New Frontiers" theme, which is to be carried out in the whole decoration of the centre. The plan is to show that so long as there were new geographical frontiers people always could find a transient escape from old problems, economic, political and even spiritual by "moving on." To-day mankind has to solve his problems. There is no "moving on." The development of civilization has ceased to be lateral and become inward and upward. It is the cultivation of mankind's mental and spiritual qualities, the broadening and deepening of his relations with his fellow men and the coming to a fuller comprehension of living.

In the great hall the frontiers to be depicted are "man's new relation to matter, the possibilities arising from his new understanding of spiritual things and man's new relation to men, his more complete understanding of the real meaning of the Sermon on the Mount."

Sert's four canvases are to deal with the mastery of the material universe, power, will, imagination and genius. Brangwyn is to show the new relationship to society in four canvases dealing with "family relationships, relationships as a worker, as a part of government and ethical or religious relationships, the fourth to be regarded as the dominating and controlling factor without which the first three can only fail."

Rivera's single panel is to show man at the crossroads looking with uncertainty, but with hope and high vision, to the choosing of the course leading to a new and better future.

NEW ERA IN WIRELESS

SENATOR MARCONI'S LATEST INVENTION

Revolutionary developments in wireless and telegraph communications are foreshadowed by the results of Senator Marconi's series of experiments in the use of ultra short waves combined with portable reflectors.

The results of these experiments are most important because they prove that it is possible by the use of ultra short waves to send messages over a greater distance than was theoretically believed possible.

The new discovery has also considerable commercial advantages, notably non-interference and economy, since the power used is less than that needed for the headlights of a motor car.

The compact nature of the apparatus may have a far-reaching effect on the future of wireless communications.

From his yacht Electra, in which he carried out the majority of his wireless experiments, Senator Marconi was able by the use of low power on ultra short 57-centimetre waves to talk by wireless telephone and wireless telegraph from Cape Figari, in Sardinia, to Rocca di Papa, which is 2,490 feet above sea level and 170 miles distant.

FEWER LISTENERS IN GERMANY

The sad news of a drop in the broadcast licence figures comes from Germany. The present quarterly total is 4,077,347, which is 2,184 less than on July 1st. This (says "The Wireless World") is the first time in German radio history that the October figures have shown a decrease against the figures for midsummer. The drop is attributed to the world economic crisis and not to the reorganisation of German broadcasting.

BROADCASTING TO THE EMPIRE

Dr. Montague J. Rendall, one of the governors of the B.B.C., in opening the third annual Scottish Radio Exhibition in Edinburgh, said that on Christmas Day next the first regular broadcasting programme would be sent forth to the ends of the Empire. The station was now in being and the machinery was practically perfect. Our friends across the waters would soon hear English-speaking voices. People had been clamouring for an Empire service. The B.B.C. had done their duty. An appeal had been issued and they had shouldered the responsibility.

A RADIO RHYME

This modern nursery rhyme is selected from the entries in a competition recently conducted by an English newspaper:—
Hey diddle, diddle;
Why play a fiddle
With a wireless at hand night and noon!
I can sit at my ease,
It's a jolly good wheeze,
And twiddle the knobs for a tune.

HAVE YOU HEARD THESE?

Here are lists of long-wave and short-wave stations which should be picked up by anyone in Hong Kong who has a moderately good set suitable for receiving such signals. Success in picking up these stations also depends very largely upon favourable atmospheric conditions. Readers are invited to add to this list should they succeed in picking up any station not included in either of these lists.

GOLD IN KENYA

FAVOURABLE REPORTS ON KAKAMEGA FIELDS.

Nairobi.—Sir Albert Kitson, the eminent geologist, who has been carrying out a survey of the Kakamega goldfields, on behalf of the Kenya Government, has issued an interim report in which he states that "from all the evidence I have seen I am strongly of the opinion that the prospects of the field quickly becoming a useful goldfield and later of developing into an important field are distinctly encouraging, and that with additional prospecting and deeper sinking numbers of reefs of payable thickness and richness will be found."

Sir Albert states that the largest nuggets found up to the present are of 9 1/2 and 8 1/2 ounces. Large areas are still untested, and there is a wide scope for intensive prospecting which would probably result in the discovery of many veins. Many rich auriferous veins have been found. The total recorded amount of gold at the end of September was 4,270 ounces, but "from now onwards the proportion of reef gold to alluvial should increase rapidly."

GERMAN BID FOR
ATLANTIC TRADE

HELPED BY SMALL
HARBOUR DUES

PASSENGERS TAKEN OFF
BY TENDER

Southampton.—The decision of the Hamburg-South America Line to make Southampton their terminal port for a series of nine pleasure cruises by the Cap Polonio next summer is further evidence of the growth of the competition between the British and German lines, which is already centred at Southampton.

For a long period the German companies have been making a bid to capture the North Atlantic passenger trade.

Southampton is one of the principal ports of call for both the Hamburg-America and the North German Lloyd liners on the Hamburg or Bremen to New York services.

The host of these calls is not great, as the ships of both lines do not avail themselves of the full facilities of the docks. By anchoring in Cowes Roads and embarking or disembarking passengers by tender, they save a considerable amount in dock and harbour dues as compared with the ships of British lines, which make Southampton their home port.

Charges Compared.

In October for example, the Hamburg-America Line had seven ships calling at the port on the outward, and six ships on the homeward voyages, on the Hamburg-New York service; while the North German Lloyd have five ships calling both outward and inward on the Bremen-
New York run.

An indication of the saving resulting from the present procedure is gleaned from the fact that the harbour dues on vessels entering the docks are 14d. per ton on net registered tonnage, while the dues payable on vessels anchoring outside the harbour are 1d. per ton on net registered tonnage. The difference is shown in a comparison of the harbour dues on the big ships of British and German lines.

Every time the White Star liner Majestic berths at Southampton she pays 2139 13s. 3d. in harbour dues.
The Cunard liner Berengaria pays 2114 15s. 6d.

On the other hand, the dues payable by the North German Lloyd liners Bremen and Europe each time they anchor at Cowes Roads are about £46 and £43 10s. respectively.
If the Cap Polonio does make Southampton her terminal port for the cruises she will be liable for harbour and dock dues in accordance with scale.

Officials of the shipping companies at Southampton are not impressed with the efficiency of the proposal of the Hamburg-South America Line to charge 21 in addition to normal fare, to cover tips and subscriptions.
"Though the practice will be new,
the idea is old," said one official.

FILM CORPORATION TO PAY £214

Mr. Desmond Jeans, the monocular actor-boxer, received judgment for £214 in the King's Bench Division on the claim he brought against the British and Dominions Film Corporation, Ltd., for salary he alleged was due for his acting in the film "The Blue Danube."

It was stated that Mr. Jeans was brought from America to act in the film at a salary of £250 for twenty-one days. The agreement provided for payment of salary at a pro-rata rate for extra days worked.

Mr. Jeans worked extra days at intervals, and was paid for them.
He contended that he was entitled to be paid not only for the days

EX-AMBASSADOR ON TRIAL

CASE HEARD BY FRENCH COURT OF APPEAL

Paris.—M. de St. Aulaire, formerly Ambassador in London, was among a number of directors of a former financing company known as the Holtra who appealed for trial on various charges in connection with the famous crash.

By virtue of his being a Grand Officer of the Legion of Honour, M. de St. Aulaire can only be tried by the Court of Appeal, and all those who are accused with him, including Oustrie and Gualingo, are in consequence enjoying the same privilege.

The Holtra was a French holding society and was founded by Oustrie to exploit various industrial concerns, notably in textile, shoe-making, and the manufacturing of motor-cars. In November, 1930, when the crash occurred, the capital invested amounted to nearly £2,000,000. The original capital of just under £1,000,000 was provided by Oustrie, and it is alleged that when raising more capital the company committed an infraction of the company law.

"THE VANISHING FRONTIER"

TALE OF A PRISON HULK AT KING'S

Floating island is a kind of desert eaten at meals. Floating prison is a kind of "just deserts" meted out to criminals in certain portions of the world.

Producers of "The Vanishing Frontier," a Paramount picture starring Johnny Mack Brown, and featuring Evalyn Knapp, Zasu Pitts, Raymond Hatton and J. Farrell MacDonald, which is now showing at the King's Theatre, learned that Californians of a few generations ago got their just deserts, when they deserved them, on a floating prison.

And an old schooner, the "Baltimore," used during this period as a prison ship, was rebuilt for use in several sequences of the pictures.

The "Baltimore" was moored in the river off Shasta, and here all persons who defied the law and were captured were imprisoned. It was gutted of its cabins and holds, and refitted with two large barred enclosures, extending the entire length of the vessel, and divided along the length. One was used for men prisoners, the other for women.

An exact replica of the "Baltimore" complete to the name on the stern of the vessel, was built for use in "The Vanishing Frontier."

It is here that Johnny Mack Brown, in the role of a Spanish American bandero who preys on the rich to aid the poor, is confined after his capture by the authorities. And it is when his followers cut the boat loose, under the direction of Miss Knapp, who is in love with Brown, that the climax of the picture is reached.

"TRANSGRESSION"

OPENING AT QUEEN'S TO-MORROW

"Transgression," opening at the Queen's Theatre to-morrow is a vivid film of contrasts.

From the quiet, pleasing panorama of an English country-side, the picture moves swiftly to the night life of Paris with its kaleidoscopic parade of women flirting with the danger of pleasure, and thence to a romantic setting of the Dons in the wilds of Spain.

Directed by Herbert Brenon, "Transgression," boasts a splendid cast with Kay Francis, Ricardo Cortez, Paul Cavanagh, Nance O'Neill, John St. Polis and Cissy Fitzgerald, portraying the leading roles.

The film was adapted from the novel, "The Next Corner," by Kate Jordan.

UNCANNY FIRST NIGHT

LONDON APPLAUDS WIDOWED ACTRESS

The Play: "Once a Husband."
Authors: Margot Neville and Brett Hay.

Theatre: Haymarket.
This play provided Jane Baxter with her first stage appearance since her husband, Clive Dunlop, was killed while motor-racing on the Brooklands track.

The fact that the tragedy occurred so recently lent an uncanny air of drama to the opening minutes of "Once a Husband"—especially since the programme revealed that she would be among the first to appear.

Audience Puzzled.

Her entrance came. The audience, obviously sympathetic, but charged with British reticence, were puzzled to know how exactly they should react.

The stalls and the pit remained sympathetic, but silent. The back of the dress circle broke into enthusiastic applause. The gallery joined in towards the end.

The incident will always figure among the strangest first-night experiences I have ever had.

In fact, such was the significance attaching to Jane Baxter's appearance that, for some, the play was not "the thing."

The Plot.

"Once a Husband" is one of those theatrical efforts during which you feel that nothing may happen at any moment.

Here is the plot. Fay Compton—(looking very exciting, but, maybe, that's not my business)—finds herself on the point of marrying a young man, when her husband, Owen Nares, decides to blow into the plot.

Apparently during their original married life Nares had proved something of a bore. But on returning he was all changed.

Of course, he and Fay fall in love again, and the curtain comes down on a climax which has been in sight from 8.52 p.m.

The acting is tremendously competent. The dialogue boasts several good lines. But where do such things get you?

"WHAT PRICE HOLLYWOOD"

RKO PATHE PRODUCTION AT CENTRAL THEATRE

Of its people and made by its people, Hollywood writes its own biography in "What Price Hollywood," which brings the smart vivacity of the glamorous Constance Bennett in her latest RKO Pathe starring production, which opens at the Central Theatre to-day. Miss Bennett is purported to surmount the charm and elegance she displayed in her previous film success, "Lady With a Past," which won a host of new fans for the screen star.

With a galaxy of celebrities in support, Miss Bennett unfolds the intricacies and intimacies of the inner and more notable circles of the film Capitol. Lowell Sherman, Neil Hamilton, Gregory Ratoff, Louis Beavers and others aid the star to present an authentic dramatization of Hollywood life. The action traverses the thoroughfare of social life coupled with a delightful tale. Malibu Beach, the Brown Derby Restaurant, glittering Hollywood Boulevard, Agua Caliente, a Chinese Theatre, premiere and the princely estates of Beverly Hills partake of the film footage to enhance the story. Moreover, every phase of talking picture making is frankly revealed.

The story of "What Price Hollywood" was by Adela Rogers Hyland, one of the city's own residents who consequently is enabled to call the most familiar angles of Hollywood. Concerning itself with an ambitious girl who crashes the studio gates, the plot depicts the spectacular rise of a waitress who enchants a famed director and producer to gain a ranking on the screen. Interwoven, is an ultra-modern note of romance and whimsical comedy which will charm Bennett fans and secure an additional list of followers. "What Price Hollywood," directed by George Cukor, is a David O. Selznick production.

POSSESSION OF OPIUM

CHINESE CONSTABLE AND RETURNED EMIGRANT

Before Mr. Schofield at the Central Police Court yesterday, Wong Chi, a returned emigrant from Canada, and Lau King, a Chinese constable, were charged with being in possession of 12 tael of prepared opium found on the premises of 247, Queen's Road Central.

Mr. F. C. Randall appeared on behalf of the second defendant. Mr. Peter Sin, who represented the first defendant, returned a plea of guilty to the possession of one tael only. Against the second defendant an additional charge of keeping an opium den was preferred.

Sergeant McDonald, prosecuted for the police, and in opening the case, said that on November 16, in company with C.P.O. Bullock and others he raided No. 247, Queen's Road Central, where he found the two defendants and seven others in a small cubicle. Four of the persons were smoking opium.

Opium Discovered.

On opening a peachy box, nine tael of opium were discovered, and when asked by C.P.O. Bullock how much opium he had, first defendant replied by opening another box and produced two more tael. On his person was found another tael, making twelve in all. Sergeant McDonald went on to say that two witnesses would be able to prove that, on the previous night the second defendant carried a parcel to 247, Queen's Road Central, and they will say that the parcel contained tins of opium.

It is alleged that, when asked by C.P.O. Bullock as to where he obtained the opium, first defendant said he got it from Lau King.

After the hearing of corroborative evidence from witnesses for the prosecution the case was adjourned.

TO PROTECT WOMEN AND GIRLS

TIGHTENING OF MORALITY LAWS

An Ordinance to amend the Protection of Women and Girls Ordinance, 1897, is to be presented at to-day's meeting of the Legislative Council.

The new sub-section reads as follows:—

Every occupier or keeper of a house or portion thereof which is used in the manner aforesaid shall be liable for the first offence of such use, to a fine not exceeding two hundred and fifty dollars and to imprisonment for any term not exceeding three months; for the second offence, to a fine not exceeding five hundred dollars and to imprisonment for any term not exceeding six months; and for a third or any subsequent offence to a fine not exceeding one thousand dollars and to imprisonment for any term not exceeding twelve months.

A further amendment is as follows:—

Every male person who—
(a) knowingly lives wholly or in part on the earnings of prostitution; or

(b) solicits for immoral purposes, shall be liable to imprisonment for any term not exceeding six months.

There is also an amendment of procedure in cases of indecent assault, etc.

The "Objects and Reasons" explain that the first amendment raises the maximum fines from $100, $200 and $500 to $250, $500 and $1,000 respectively.

The effect of the soliciting clause, etc., is to substitute the words "solicits for immoral purposes" for the words "in any public place persistently solicits or importunes for immoral purposes" and to raise the penalty from three months to six months. The words "in any public place persistently solicits or importunes" came from section 1 of the Vagrancy Act, 1868, (31 and 32 Vict., c. 35); but they appear to afford an unnecessary degree of protection to a type of pest which has recently increased.

OPPOSITION.

The degree of doctor of divinity has been refused to the Rev. E. L. Macassey, B.D., M.A., in circumstances which are likely to give cause for controversy.

Mr. Macassey is the vicar of St. Andrew's, Bethune-road, Stoke Newington. Some time ago he sent in four theses supporting his application for the degree. His work was approved, and the Regius Professor of Divinity wrote from Oxford saying that he should have it.

"At the last moment," said Mr. Macassey, "as I was actually on my way to take the degree, the professor was ordered to remove my name because I was too junior an M.A."

Military Service.

"Had I not gone to the war, like many of the young Oxford clerical dons, I could have got my D.D. without any difficulty. It was because I went on military service that the difficulty arose."

"The matter had been discussed several times, and several of the leading authorities thought it was a debt of honour that Oxford should pay. When, however, it was brought up in the congregation, the proposal was defeated by two votes—sixteen to fourteen."

"The agitation against me was led apparently by Anglo-Catholics. They have been carrying on a campaign against the proposal to make me a D.D."

"But when people so eminent as Mr. H. A. L. Fisher are in favour of this honour being given me I am quite content. This sort of thing only hurts those who do it."

THREE MUI TSAI CASES

WOMEN FINED AT CENTRAL MAGISTRACY

Before Mr. Schofield yesterday, Inspector H. W. Fraser prosecuted three married women for offences under the Mui Tsai Ordinance.

Mok Foon, a married woman, of Stone Nullah Lane, was accused of having kept an unregistered mui tsai and on pleading guilty was fined $30.

Inspector Fraser said that an anonymous report was received regarding the girl on November 12. She was presented by her natural mother to the defendant for $110 Hong Kong currency. She did practically all the household work but received no wages, except "lucky money."

The girl complained of having received insufficient food and clothing. Further on November 8 she was struck with a pair of iron tongs for allowing some sawdust to catch fire in the kitchen.

The doctor found two dark discolorations of the right knee.

The girl had been with the defendant for four years.

Hard Worked But Well Treated.

In the second case it was stated that the girl, who was seen by a lady inspector in the street, was well treated by her mistress and given good food and clothes. She was presented by her mother for $144. She did most of the household work and occasionally received small sums of money. A fine of $50 was imposed.

Girl From Yunnan.

A fine of $50 was imposed on Wong Chan Shi, of 18, Caroline Hill Road. The defendant bought the girl in Yunnan for $125 and although she claimed that she paid her $2.50 per month, the girl told the police that she only received 50 cents each month.

Defendant said the girl was an amah and not a mui tsai.

His Worship retorted that the fact the defendant had paid $125 for the girl made her a mui tsai.

SUMMARY COURT CLAIMS

SHANGHAI COMPANY AS DEFENDANTS

Claims totalling $2,068.64 were mentioned before Mr. Justice Wood yesterday when Mr. F. X. D'Almada representing the Shanghai Co., Ltd., consented to judgment with cost. The claims Messrs. W. Meyerink and Co. and by Messrs. Jardine, Matheson & Co.

Messrs. W. Meyerink and Co., Pedder Building, claimed for loss sustained in respect of defendants' failure to take delivery of three cases of Italian contingents, ordered under a contract dated April 23, 1931, from plaintiffs. The cases were due for clearance on June 30, but owing to defendants' failure to do so, the goods were re-sold by plaintiffs on November 4, in consequence of which they suffered loss amounting to $331.15.

Messrs. Jardine, Matheson & Co., of Pedder Street, entered claims for $781.65 and $455.84. The first was in respect of 790 1/2 yards of wool gabardines valued at $1,784.67, an auction rule of which, following failure to take delivery, realised only $1,200.24, a loss of $584.43. Other losses on the transaction amounted to $159.22, bringing the total loss to the amount claimed, namely $781.65.

The other claim by Messrs. Jardine, Matheson & Co. was in connection with 634 1/2 yards of cloth valued at $924.24, an auction sale of which realised only $461.39, a loss of $462.85. Other expenses in the sale were $92.99, making a total loss sustained of $455.84.

Of this honour being given me I am quite content. This sort of thing only hurts those who do it."

ITALIAN CONSUL LEAVING HONG KONG

RETURNING TO MUKDEN ON DEC. 5

Capt. R. Ferrajolo, who has been in Hong Kong for the last eighteen months in the capacity of Italian Consul-General, will be leaving the Colony on the 5th instant.

Capt. Ferrajolo arrived in Hong Kong after having spent 13 years in the Far East, in the Italian Diplomatic Service, at Shanghai, Harbin, Peking, Hankow and Mukden. Previous to his entering the diplomatic service he served in the war. His cheerful disposition and sincerity made him a friend to all who had the pleasure of meeting him and his tactfulness, joined with his generosity and ability, will be long remembered by those who find the privilege of making his acquaintance.

The departure of both Capt. and Mrs. Ferrajolo will be a deeply felt loss to the Italian Colony of Hong Kong who had for them not only a sense of respect but a feeling of friendship.

Capt. Ferrajolo is again going to Mukden and it is owing to his great knowledge of that particular country that the decision was arrived at. He is probably the only man in China of his nationality qualified to the position.

CHINESE INVOICE OFFICER REGULATIONS FOR GOODS TO BE SENT INTO CHINA FULL EXPLANATION OF PROCEDURE

In an interview with Press representatives yesterday, Mr. Y. H. Wen, who has been appointed by the Nanking Government to be Chinese Invoice Officer for Hong Kong under the new arrangements which call for the certifying of all invoices of goods destined for China, gave details of procedure which are here published for general information.

A NOTE ON MR. Y. H. WEN'S CAREER

Mr. Wen is a native of Taishan, Kwangtung Province, but spent his early years in North China. In fact, he has travelled widely in China, except in the South. In 1901 Mr. Wen went to the U.S.A. to complete a military education at the famous academy at West Point and subsequently saw military service in China both before and after the Revolution. He has also held the office of President of the Ching Hwa College, Peking, and was later Chief of Police in Harbin, followed by a term of office as Chief of Police in Shanghai, where he was in charge during the troublous days early this year.

The new Chinese Invoice Office is established on the fourth floor of the French Bank Building in Queen's Road Central where, at the time of the Press visit, a crowd of office messengers was clamouring for specimens of the Invoice form, a model of which was available for free distribution. There is, however, a shortage of copies of the Regulations, so that it will be convenient to set forth the principal articles here, adding explanatory remarks elicited in conversation with Mr. Wen.

Article I.

From the date of the coming into effect of the present Regulations, all merchandise imported into China, valued at or above two hundred dollars Chinese currency, shall be accompanied by Consular Invoices issued by the Chinese Consulate at or near the port of embarkation; postal parcels and such goods as are admitted duty free by the Chinese Maritime Customs being excepted.

As there is no Chinese Consulate in Hong Kong, Mr. Wen has been appointed by the Nanking Government, after negotiations in which the British Foreign Office and the Hong Kong Government have taken part, with the title of "Chinese Invoice Officer." His functions are concerned only with the certifying of invoices. The two hundred dollars Chinese currency is calculated in Customs Gold units, 110 of the latter being the equivalent at the moment. The fees charged by the office will be based on the official rates issued weekly by the Chinese Maritime Customs for the calculation of Customs Gold units. To-day the rate is $9.25 H.K. currency for five Customs Gold units. Certified invoices will not be required for rice and other cereals, books and educational equipment, etc., or other articles which are admitted to China duty free.

Article III.

The Consul shall verify all the items contained in the invoice as filled in by the merchant, before certification is made. In case the Consul deems it necessary to examine the sales contract, the commercial invoice or other documents, the merchant shall furnish the same.

For Consul in this article read, in the case of Hong Kong, "Chinese Invoice Officer." Mr. Wen stated that in practice it would not be necessary for merchants to produce any supporting documents—only when his office questioned the accuracy of the invoice. He added that at first he would have some difficulty in verifying the particulars given, until he became familiar with prevailing prices. In any case, the Chinese Maritime Customs, with their vast experience, would see that goods under-declared in value were not admitted into China without paying the proper rate of duty.

Article IV.

Each set of the Invoice forms shall consist of three copies, one original in white, and two duplicates in yellow.

Article V.

The fee for the certification of a set of the forms shall be five Chinese Customs Gold units and shall be collected at the time of certification.

Mr. Wen explained that unless he received instructions to the contrary from Nanking he proposes to charge the fee at the time of issue of the blank set of forms. The reason for this is that the stock of forms which he has received from Nanking is serially numbered and he has to account for every one. If he issues blanks in quantities to firms, and weeks or months elapse before they are all used up, his records will be full of gaps representing forms unaccounted for.

If a set of forms is inadvertently spoiled, it will be replaced free of charge on being handed back to the Chinese Invoice Office. If the particulars required to be entered are too long to be shown on the space provided in the form, the merchant should attach a continuation sheet of the same size as the form and also in triplicate, repeating the same serial number as appears on sheet 1, and both the first sheet and the continuation sheet will be certified without extra charge. If a transaction is expressed in a foreign currency, the total of the invoice should be converted into Hong Kong currency.

Article VII.

Merchandise sold to two or more different importing firms, or car-

AN IDEA FOR OUR ROTARY CLUB

SHANGHAI'S CHRISTMAS TOY COLLECTION

A Rotary Matinee was held at Shanghai by the Fox Film Corporation on Sunday at the Nanking Theatre, when a Fox film was shown. The price of admission was a toy—now, used or broken—in aid of the Rotary Club's Christmas toy collection for poor children. The function was not confined to Rotarians and the general public was welcomed, the only condition for admission being as stated.

ried by two or more different vessels, or destined for two or more different ports, shall not be covered by the same invoice.

This seems to require no further explanation except to say that there is no necessity to make out a different invoice for each article when sending several different commodities to one consignee.

Article VIII.

Upon the arrival of the merchandise at destination the consignee shall present the original copy of the Invoice to the Chinese Maritime Customs together with other Customs papers for examination.

The principal comment to be made here is that the exporter must be careful to enclose the certified Invoice with the documents forwarded to the consignee. The duplicates of the certified Invoice are both retained by the Chinese Invoice Officer; one is his file copy and the other is forwarded to the Ministry of Foreign Affairs at the end of each month in order that a check may take place with the original which is collected by the Chinese Maritime Customs.

General.

Mr. Wen said the instructions stated that merchants should submit invoices to the nearest officer to the port of embarkation. Under this instruction he would be willing to certify any invoices forwarded to him by merchants in Macao where there is no Chinese Consulate. He understood that it sometimes happened that merchants in Hong Kong gave instructions for cargo to be moved from neighbouring countries into China. He would also issue a certificate in those cases, unless, of course, there was a Chinese Consul in that country.

Mr. Wen was asked what would be the procedure if part of a cargo which he had certified was short-shipped, so that the invoice showed a greater quantity of goods than actually reached destination. He replied that in practice he thought no difficulty would arise as the Chinese Maritime Customs would deal with the matter at destination.

Asked if he had any idea as to the number of requests for certified invoices that he would receive daily, Mr. Wen said it was difficult to say but he expected about 100 daily. After all, if a substantial percentage of Hong Kong export trade was to countries other than China, although, admittedly, the bulk of the exports went to China. If it was found that the provision made was inadequate, a larger staff would be engaged in order to give prompt service.

SEQUEL FIGHT ON WHARF

COOLIE COMMITTED FOR TRIAL

The case in which Lo Chong, a wharf coolie, is charged with the murder of Tong Tsat alias Tong Fat in Connaught Road Central, on October 23 last, was continued before Mr. Wynne-Jones at the Central Police Court yesterday, and resulted in the defendant being committed for trial at the next Criminal Sessions.

A Matter of Cabbages.

Tong Kui, a Chinese Police Sergeant, gave evidence to the effect that, at 8 o'clock on October 23 he went to the Kwong Wing Wharf, where he saw an injured man lying against a basket of vegetables. Blood was streaming from his forehead. Witness did not see the accused there, but the injured man told him he was set upon by a gang of coolies when he (the injured man) asked them for some cabbages. He was subsequently removed to the Government Civil Hospital where he died.

He Took My Things.

After formal evidence had been submitted, Inspector J. Murphy told the Magistrate that in answer to the original charge of "causing grievous bodily harm" defendant made the following statement:—"I have nothing to say I struck him twice with a pole because he had taken away my things."

Mr. M. K. Lo who appeared on behalf of the defendant intimated that the defendant was reserving his defence to the Sessions.

Mr. J. A. Fraser, Crown prosecutor appeared for the prosecution.

The Daily Press

HONG KONG, DECEMBER 1, 1932.

THE WORLD'S MODEL
DAIRY SHOW

HONG KONG being fortunate enough to have modern dairy farms, with Home cattle, is in a position to take an interest in so far-away an event as the London Dairy Show. Moreover, the show includes poultry and in view of the efforts to introduce British breeds into this Colony the fortunes of that section will be followed by poultry keepers all over. It is also good to know that despite the badness of the times this annual London enterprise was a great success.

Of late years the opinion has frequently been expressed that too many agricultural shows are being held in England, but nobody has ever suggested that the London Dairy Show, organised by the British Dairy Farmers' Association, could be dispensed with. This show, which has taken place annually for 64 years, has indeed rendered signal services to the British dairy industry by stimulating farmers to greater and yet greater efforts in breeding animals worthy to compete with the best and finest of the various dairy breeds in the country, and to concentrate on cattle which, as proved by the combination of inspection and tests of performance at the stall arranged during the show, combine high milk yields with good looks.

The entries this year fell numerically below those of last year—7,841 against 8,040—but the decrease caused no alarm. It was chiefly accounted for by the sections of Irish butter and eggs, Cheshire cheese and bottle fruit, and was by far outweighed in importance by the increase in bacon and hams. The entries in most classes were surprisingly good when one considers the detrimental influence the depression has had on most of the provincial shows held during the summer. And in one section, that for machinery, the demand from exhibitors for floor-space had been so great that the entire Central Hall was given up to apparatus and mechanical devices in connection with dairying, poultry-farming, and bee-keeping.

The greatest interest centred naturally round the fine herd of cattle which had arrived from every point of the country. In all 344 head were entered. All the famous breeds of British dairy cattle were well represented, and it was especially gratifying to find that the number of cattle this year entered from herds certified free from tuberculosis had increased to nearly the double of last year's figure.

The competition for the trophy, valued at 200 guineas, presented by Lord BLENHEIM to the breed society adjudged to have the best exhibit of good all-round dairy cows, attracted an entry which has never before been approached. The trophy was won by a magnificent team of six Ayrshire cows, a breed much favoured by the Dairy Farm in Hong Kong, while a British Friesian team came second. In the last twelve years British Friesian cattle, the big black and white animals, also seen locally, have won this coveted trophy six times, and as far as milking performance is concerned they proved the best also this year, although they lost points on inspection. During their last lactation period this team averaged 1,532 gallons of milk per cow. A team of Dairy Shorthorns came third in the competition and was awarded the highest number of points on inspection, but in the milking tests they fell below the standard of their rivals. In the butter tests a British Friesian cow gave in one day 97.8 pounds of milk, which yielded 3 pounds 12 ounces of butter. In the Shorthorn class the winner gave 72.5 pounds of milk with a butter yield of 3 pounds 2 ounces, while among the Jersey cows the highest yield was 60.99 pounds of milk giving 3 pounds 9 ounces of butter.

The entry of goats this year was 114, or ten per cent. more than a year ago, and much interest was shown in the ring where these animals were being judged. It would seem that the disinclination in England to use goats' milk as an item of dietary is slowly disappearing. In the poultry section the standards were also unusually high, and Rhode Island Reds retained their popularity as exhibition breed. The sale of prize-winning birds gave their owners handsome sums, one Indian Game cockerel fetching £30, while others ranged in price between £20 and £10. Over three thousand birds were exhibited in this section, and it is another proof of the growth of the poultry industry in Great Britain that 2,000 square feet of extra space had to be allotted to the machinery section of this year to accommodate the exhibits from firms catering for the needs of poultry-keepers.

At the present time dairy farming is the most confident branch of Great Britain's agricultural industry, and the general excellence of the produce at the Dairy Show indicated the reason why so many foreign cattle-breeders turn to this country when they wish to introduce new blood into their herds.

DEBATE AT SAILORS' & SOLDIERS' HOME

FOR AND AGAINST SMOKING

An entertaining debate took place at the Sailors' and Soldiers' Home, Wanchai, last evening, on the motion "That the prevalence of the Smoking Habit is to be deplored." Mr. A. Edwards presided over a large audience.

The Rev. W. Walton Rogers, in proposing the motion, deprecated smoking as an utterly savage and degrading habit which was one of the consequences of the discovery of America. (Laughter.) As to the evil effects of smoking, Mr. Rogers hurled medical dictionaries at his audience and added that although the smoke from the Cement Works in Kowloon was often complained of, the far more prevalent and injurious clouds of smoke from addicts of the tobacco habit were not mentioned. (Laughter.) About the only use of tobacco which the speaker could think of was as an emetic, as demonstrated by Robinson Crusoe on a famous occasion. With great gusto he quoted Butler's "Anatomy of Melancholy" in a reference to "hellish, devilish and damned tobacco." In Turkey the penalty for its use at one time was death; in Russia, krousting; the Methodist Church 100 years ago prohibited its ministers from the use of tobacco, and the prohibition still stood.

The Opposition.

The Rev. E. G. Powell, opposing the motion, denied that tobacco could be condemned under any of the dictionary meanings of "deplorable;" it was helpful to mind and nerves; it gave a feeling of repose and confidence, thereby improving intellectual work. Tobacco gave a great deal of employment and was a large revenue producer. As most of the tobacco came from America, we were paying our war debts with our breath (laughter). He looked forward to the day when all the nations would smoke the pipe of peace (applause).

Mr. S. Hamer smoked a fat cigar while he declared, in support of the motion, that smoking was a "naughty, dirty, dangerous habit" expenditure on which was non-productive, as it would be a better applied to more useful enterprises.

Mr. W. Sprague, speaking fourth, entertained the audience with an amusing defence of tobacco, amongst other things as a specific for nagging wives.

The Chairman then invited the audience "if they could find a spare inch of ground not covered" to take a hand, and a number of further entertaining speeches were made. Mr. Rogers finally demolished the "argument" that smoking is a good thing because it prevents giving way to worse habits, by saying "You might as well encourage a murderer to give up murder and go in for theft."

The motion was declared carried by a large majority.

shown in the ring where these animals were being judged. It would seem that the disinclination in England to use goats' milk as an item of dietary is slowly disappearing. In the poultry section the standards were also unusually high, and Rhode Island Reds retained their popularity as exhibition breed. The following story is told of a Young Man of Prague:—When his landlady gave him a fortnight's notice, a young man lodger told her, "If I can't live here, then nobody else shall!" Then he set the house on fire. It was completely destroyed.

Blazing Wrath.

All who have ever tried to practise the art of lodging—and lodging is indeed an art requiring as much tact and finesse as matrimony itself—will be interested in this brave youth. He cannot, it is true, be allowed to have discovered the secret of successful lodging, but he must be credited with having found the answer to the most unanswerable of all demands—notice to quit. Where most dismissed lodgers merely allow their wrath to smoulder, he allowed his to blaze forth—and in something more than transient words. He had the courage of his righteous indignation, and a few more demonstrations such as his throughout the world would do much to raise the status of lodgers as a class.

A One-Pig Fair.

Mr. De Valera's last visit to London coincided with the arrival of a true story from County Galway. Not long ago the first fair of the season was opened at Clifden in Connemara. It consisted of one large sow asleep in the middle of the fairground and one woman, the owner of the sow, sitting quietly beside it smoking a clay pipe. After a while, as no buyers arrived, the woman rose, woke the sow, and proceeded to drive it home again.

"Democracy's Greatest Gift"

A monument has been dedicated at Fredericksburg, Virginia, to its citizens who declared, more than 150 years ago, for the separation of church and state. The monument is composed of stones brought from 10 churches of differing creeds. Governor Pollard terms the separation idea as "democracy's greatest and most distinctive gift to the science of government." "Distinguished scholars and religiousists listened attentively to the Governor's strong words—in the silence that spells assent," an American paper.

The Death of Nelson.

The exact wording and authorship of Nelson's famous signal is a matter authorities like to quarrel over on Trafalgar Day. In France they have another Trafalgar question that stirs much controversy. Was it a Breton or a Provencal who fired the shot which killed the Admiral? An old French sailor's shanty gives them both a share in the fatal shot.

When the Redoubtable went into action, says the balladist, a Provencal and a Breton were together in her fighting-top. "Have you your musket loaded?" asked the Provencal, and being told yes, said "Pass it to me, for I can see Lord Nelson." The Breton passed his musket, the shot was fired, and Nelson fell. The Redoubtable, shot to pieces in her engagement with the Victory, hauled down her flag when there was scarcely a man left to keep it flying, but the balladist asserts that before that happened the two who had co-operated to "slay the terrible Nelson" had died together at their post.

Sheffield's City Hall.

The new City Hall in Sheffield, England, is an inspiring example of civic enterprise. Built at a cost of £443,000—almost a pound per capita of the town's population—it is not intended to be used as the headquarters of the city's administration, nor for the transaction of civic business. This City Hall, a magnificent structure that recalls both the Greek and the Renaissance styles of architecture, is designed largely for concerts of music, the presentation of stage plays, banquets and speeches. It is primarily a recognition of the value of culture and beauty in a great industrial city.

East-West Trade in Year 900 A.D.

Copenhagen.—Proof that trade connections existed between the far North of Europe and the East 1,000 years ago is said to be provided by the discovery of a collection of coins on a farm belonging to Anton Mortensen, of Over Randler. Nearly all the coins in question are Kiphan (old Arabic), dating back to about the year 900; two are still older and hail from Persia, and one was minted in Milan at the time of the Carolingian Empire. Another is a kind of memorial coin or medal hailing from East Anglia, which is considered exceedingly rare, only very few specimens being known.

Butchers in Glass Houses.

A new meaning has been given by a Paris butcher to the old adage about people who live in glass houses. He has enclosed his assistants in a glass case, and there in future all the meat that he sells will be cut up, weighed out, and packed.

This system, which is the last word in hygiene, was inaugurated in the presence of doctors and biologists from the Faculty of Medicine and the Pasteur Institute. They were enthusiastic about it.

The air in the case is filtered by a special apparatus situated in the basement of the establishment and is always germ free, dry and cool. The men are clad in spotlessly white overalls and wear white rubber gloves. They look more like surgeons than butchers.

LOOKING BACK 75 YEARS

H.M. steamer Nimrod was dispatched on Sunday in search of a pirate and returned yesterday morning. The pirate was found at Lintin with her stern hauled on the beach. The steamer commenced firing as soon as she came within range, when the crew of the pirate made off under the land and escaped among the rocks in small sampans although a boat was sent in chase. On boarding the pirate she was found deserted, and so sudden had been the retreat that the men's dinner was abandoned under process of cooking. The large gun was dismounted and hidden, a quantity of rockets, muskets, powder and ball were found on board. She was set on fire in two places and totally destroyed.—Hong Kong Daily Press, December 1, 1857.

Considerable time was lost owing to junks and sampans getting in the way of the ranges, but eventually these were got out of the way and firing began. Cross of the R.G.A. addressed the men. CAN BRITAIN PAY
AMERICA?WAR DEBTS QUESTION
STILL A RIDDLE

(THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY.)

LONDON, Nov. 30. ALTHOUGH the Cabinet sat late last night, solely discussing the draft of the Debt Reply to the United States, they failed to complete their task.

The matter is expected to come up for consideration once again early this morning.

The Daily Mail understands, however, that the breach has been healed and that a full agreement was reached to pay the United States in gold if the American Government insists on payment.

Gold Shipments.

The Daily Herald declares that the Government has decided to ship £20,000,000 in bar gold to the United States and that the first instalment is leaving to-day, while the insurers have been informed that the sum must be covered for the whole of the next three weeks.

The Herald adds that the shipment of gold from the Bank of England will not affect the note circulation in Britain, but probably, as a precautionary measure, legislation will be passed increasing the fiduciary issue by another fifteen millions sterling.

Ministers Confer.

(BRITISH WIRELESS SERVICE.)

Rugby, Nov. 29. The Premier and his principal Ministers were in close contact most of to-day and to-night when practically all the members of the Cabinet met for further consideration of the war debts question.

The Prime Minister was received in audience by the King at Buckingham Palace later in the evening.

It is not yet possible to state when the new Note to Washington will be despatched, although the final examination of the draft is expected to be completed within the next day or two.

There have, says the statement, obviously been many aspects of the debt situation requiring the fullest and most careful consideration.

Although it is expected that the note will be confined to setting out the reasons for the proposal briefly made in the original British communication—that inter-Governmental debts should be re-examined and the payment due on December 15 in the meanwhile suspended—it is necessary that these reasons should be stated in some detail and supported by facts of incontrovertible accuracy.

Method of Payment.

According to the London newspapers, the examination of the situation being undertaken by Cabinet Ministers includes also the assessment of the effects of every method of payment, whether by gold, in sterling or in dollars, upon these and a hundred other questions, a mass of technical data has been produced.

Among many other considerations which have to be borne in mind is the likely effect upon the Lausanne agreements, in other words, some doubt is felt whether Britain's payments could conceivably be continued without re-opening the questions on which a settlement was then reached and whether Britain could go on paying the United States without receiving anything from those countries which owe her money.

Over £200,000,000 Already Paid.

Britain has already paid £200,000,000 more to the United States than she has received from her debtors, although the amount due to her was more than the amount due from her to the United States.

It is, however, the economic consequences of the inter-Governmental debts which receive most attention in British Press.

The newspapers generally take the view expressed to-day in the New Chronicle by Sir Walter Layton, who, after pointing out the effect of the American tariff, one of the highest in the world upon the flow of goods, declares:— "There is no device known to the science of economics or to the art of finance which will enable a creditor to go on collecting debts due to it, if it will not receive the goods and the services of its debtors."

PAYING GUEST AS BURGLAR"COULD ENTER ANY LONDON HOUSE"FOURTEEN OFFENCES IN THREE DAYS

Details of the "Jekyll and Hyde" existence of a burglar were disclosed at Middlesex Sessions.

He lived in the best residential part of Golders-green, and, as a paying guest, was regarded as a man of means.

A bunch of 85 keys of different patterns were found in his room, and, according to a police officer, they would enable him to get into any house in London.

The accused man, who had been known as Frederick Johnson (29), but whose real name was said to be John Ronald Gay Rowlands, was found guilty on four charges of housebreaking and larceny at Golders-green, and was sentenced to four years' penal servitude.

Detective-sergeant Muggerside said that prisoner was a single man, and was born at Peiping, China. He had one previous conviction, having been sentenced to four terms of three months' hard labour at Manchester in respect of four cases of larceny.

He declined to give the police any particulars regarding himself, but he was believed to have been employed as a "drink waiter" in an hotel in San Francisco, and also as a shed hand in Sydney, Australia. Later he made several trips between Australia and England.

Bogus Documents.

Papers in his possession referred to his alleged career in the army, but they were found to be fraudulent. He had a certificate purporting to show that he had been granted the D.C.M., the Military Medal, with bar, the 1915 Star, and five wound stripes, but the handwriting on the certificate suggested that it had been written by prisoner himself. The War Office was unable to trace any record of his services in the army.

When a paying guest at Golders-green he frequently commented on the many burglaries committed in that district and the supposed reluctance of insurance companies to accept business. When the police visited his room part proceeds of nearly all the housebreakings with which he was charged were found there.

Apart from the four charges in the indictment, property relating to ten other cases of a similar nature were traced to his possession. The total value of property involved was between £1,300 and £1,500.

All the fourteen cases were committed between July 23 and August 31. The police were pestered with complaints, and had a very troublesome time. Johnson had been a very successful punter on the Turf this season.

Prisoner stated in court that he had served in the army. Addressing the chairman, Sir Montagu Sharpe, K.C., he said: "You hear people ask for one more chance and you must get fed up with it, but when I come out of prison I'll go abroad again and lead an honest life."

The Chairman, in passing sentence, referred to "the terror of Golders-green residents who were afraid, perhaps, to go to bed."

military forces have been engaged in combating the jungles of the mainland.

Thirteen Frenchmen and ten Spaniards, Italians, and Germans are involved in the venture. They are reported to have left Devil's Island in two groups, one heading to the north; the other making for the mainland, but carefully avoiding French Guiana.

The men may have succeeded in reaching British or Dutch Guiana, Brazil, Venezuela, or one of the islands in the Windward group.

LORDS DISCUSS
MANCHURIAGOVERNMENT URGED TO SUPPORT REPORT

(THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY.)

THE British Government was again urged to throw its weight on the side of those supporting the Lytton Report findings during a debate in the House of Lords on the Sino-Japanese dispute to-day.

The issue was raised by Viscount Cecil of Chelwood and Lord Hailsham assured him that the Government would seek a solution satisfactory to the League and the Powers most interested in the Far East.

Inviting the Government to make a statement of policy on Manchuria, Lord Cecil quoted, with approval, the Japanese Government's declaration of support for the League.

If Japan intends to support the League, he said, it will make a great difference in the seriousness of the crisis developing as a result of events in the Far East.

The question before the parties, in his opinion, was whether they were prepared to accept the Lytton Report as a basis of settlement of the dispute and he drew attention to the fact that Japan acquiesced in the appointment of the League Commission on Manchuria, in the terms of reference and in the choice of its membership.

He urged the British Government to use its utmost influence in support of the Lytton Commission.

Lord Ponsonby, leader of the Opposition in the House of Lords, said he did not expect the Government to say anything about the Sino-Japanese dispute at this stage.

Tribute to Commission.

The Earl of Reading paid a warm tribute to the work of the Lytton Commission and stressed the importance of its findings. Its impartiality and the manner in which the Commission had discharged its duties warranted warm congratulations.

He said that this Commission's findings were generally approved. This did not, of course, mean that all should be accepted, but it did mean that none be disregarded except in the face of very powerful arguments and facts.

Lord Lothian suggested that the Powers collectively should help to create a modern and efficient government in China.

Government's Reply.

Lord Hailsham, replying for the Government said it was impossible to make any statement at this time, beyond emphasising that all the efforts of the British Government would be directed to the finding of a solution of the Sino-Japanese dispute satisfactory to the League and to the Powers most closely interested in the problems of the Far East.

PRESS COMMENT ON
LORDS' DEBATE

(THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY.)

LONDON, Nov. 30. Commenting on yesterday's Manchuria debate in the House of Lords, the Daily Telegraph emphasises that neither Lord Hailsham nor any member of the Government has given the slightest encouragement to the view that a verdict has been found against Japan by the Lytton Report.

All that can be said at present, the journal adds, is that British collaboration with the other Powers is being steadily and loyally maintained, and, above all, "in good faith and friendship with the United States."

IT IS SAFER TO SNIFF

A HEALTHY NOSE MEANS AN
AGILE BRAIN.

The importance of blowing the nose correctly to ensure both good health and an active mind was stressed by Mr. C. Hamblin, Thomas, lecturing at the Institute of Hygiene, London.

If there is much discharge the nose should be blown gently, he said. The powerful sniff is not gentle, but it is undoubtedly the safest way of clearing the nose.

The child with a faulty nose, he declared, is usually at the bottom of the school. A child with nasal obstruction and catarrh is dull, and stays at the bottom of the class. When his nose is freed he goes rapidly ahead, and in one term may pass from the bottom of the class to the top.

NEW LIFE FOR
BRITISH STEELNORTHANT'S MINE
DEVELOPMENT

(THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY.)

LONDON, Nov. 30. A NEW life is opening for the British steel industry.

This is the interpretation placed on an announcement that the Bankers' Industrial Development Company is ready to finance the ironmasters, Messrs. Stewarts and Lloyds, up to £3,500,000, to mine the iron ore deposits in Northamptonshire estimated at five hundred million tons.

The scheme may cut out foreign material entirely as Stewarts and Lloyds believe that even Bessemer steel, which is mostly imported, can be produced from Northamptonshire.

MAKING WOMEN
BEAUTIFULIMPORTANCE OF LINE AND COLOURORIGINAL FASHION
MATINEES

London.—Fashion was demonstrated from new and fascinating angles at the Fortune Theatre when the "Daily Sketch" held the first of a series of Fashion Matinees.

The famous Anglo-French stylist Marceline d'Alroy, who stressed the importance of line and colour to make a woman beautiful and interesting, was first gowned in a smart black velvet ensemble. She demonstrated how clothes may give either the Rounded line of youth. Straight line for the dignified woman.

Diagonal line, which spells sophistication and danger! A rounded hat, white-lined circular cape, rounded hem of skirt, and shoes with round toe caps, combined to give perfect rhythm for the youthful toilette.

With cape removed and a different hat, dignity was achieved. Zip fasteners were ripped open at neck and wrist to reveal ear-coloured lace front, revers and pointed cuffs, giving the diagonal line. A small hat perched at a perilous angle, which the wearer declared took brains to keep on, and a silver fox fur, completed the picture of a sophisticated woman about town.

Five Yards of Fascination.

In a white evening gown fastened by huge self-covered buttons down the entire left side, a stranded toque of the same material, and a white evening coat in elephant skin velvet, collared with white fox and lined flame-coloured crepe de Chine, Mlle. d'Alroy proceeded to demonstrate the charm of colour.

A small flame-coloured crepe de Chine scarf and a five-yard box of ostrich feather, half white and half flame—five yards of fascination—were skillfully draped, twirled and twisted with wonderfully deft sleight of hand to create innumerable illusions of charm, dignity, coquetry, abandon, and even dowdiness.

A woman can wear any type of clothes, she averred, for 50 per cent. of their success depends on the clothes themselves, and a full 50 per cent. also on the mentality of the wearer.

There have been many dress designers who drape material on models. Mlle. d'Alroy claims to be the first to mould the material to herself. She chooses a wedding gown for the exposition of her particular art, and this is kept in place by two solitary pins—one at the neck-line, the other at the waist.

These matinees, all the more delightful for the epigrammatic flashes of the demonstrator, will continue for a week at 2.30 p.m. and 4.15 p.m. Tickets are 2s. 6d. and 1s. 3d.

starts life with a good nose; he should be encouraged to blow it and sniff through it at the earliest age."

An unhealthy nose caused an unhealthy throat, he went on.

"Smoking should be stopped when the throat is infected, as it will only increase the inflammation and discomfort. Pipes are possibly less irritating than cigarettes. Women are greater sufferers from throat discomfort nowadays since they have taken up smoking so much."

FIVE POWERS TO CONFERON DISARMAMENT QUESTION

(THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY.)

LONDON, Nov. 29. AN informal discussion between representatives of Britain, Germany, France, Italy and the United States is likely in the next few days, with a view to finding a basis for Germany's return to the Disarmament Conference.

This announcement was made in the House of Lords this afternoon in the course of a debate on Britain's disarmament policy, which was the subject of some criticism.

In making the announcement, Lord Hailsham indicated that the Five-Power Conference was not absolutely settled but negotiations had proceeded far and it was hoped that a meeting for informal conversations would take place before the end of the week.

Position More Hopeful.

Lord Cecil described the disarmament position as being more hopeful to-day than for some time past. He expressed approval of the principles upon which the proposals of the British Government were based, but declared that any policy of territorial arrangement for revision of the Versailles Treaty, as suggested by Mr. Winston Churchill, would be disastrous.

Viscount Cecil criticised the procedures at Geneva and urged reverting to open discussion.

Secrecy Condemned.

He was joined in this criticism by Lord Ponsonby, who, advocating open discussion, said that work behind the scenes sometimes helped, but led to suspicions. He also deplored that the British disarmament proposals permitted the return to conspiracy in Germany.

Lord Reading congratulated the Government on its disarmament scheme but said he doubted whether the proposals for international air control would prove acceptable or whether they would prove effective.

Budgetary Limitation.

Lord Reading also deplored the absence of any proposal for budgetary limitation of armaments and urged the Government to press for limitation along these lines, as a very effective means of reducing armaments and also as a means of strengthening the British position in war debts discussions with the United States.

Lord Lothian urged that the question of the Versailles Peace Treaty revision should be taken into account at the Disarmament Conference, thus enabling those most interested to arrive at a settlement in Eastern Europe, based on consent.

Five-Power Discussion.

Lord Hailsham, replying, made the announcement regarding the proposed five-Power discussions, and said, in regard to disarmament, that the Government intended to collaborate wholeheartedly in the policy of budgetary limitation.

As regards the suggestions for open discussion at Geneva, the Government was of the opinion that the problem was best approached in the first place by informal exchanges of views and public statements reduced to a minimum for the present.

He mentioned that in the last few weeks conversations have been actively pursued with the leading naval Powers in fulfilment of the resolution of the Conference in July last, but the talks had not yet reached the point where anything definite could be said.

KISSES AT 55 M.P.H.

OFFICER'S DRIVE WITH GIRL
ON HIS LAP

"If people would not do their courting in cars, it would be better for all concerned," said the Chairman of the Brentford Bench, when Allen F. Black, a Naval officer attached to the R.A.F. base, Gosport, was fined £5 for driving a motor-car without reasonable consideration.

Police Constable Minnis said he saw Black driving a large car along the Great West Road with his arm round a young woman. The speed of the car was 55 miles an hour and it was swerving from one side to the other.

Black, he said, kept cuddling and kissing the young woman, and when he was overtaken she was lying across his lap. He said he could drive with a pig across his lap and could take corners at 70 miles an hour easily in his car.

Black told the Bench that he did nothing which would prevent him from driving the car. When the woman was lying across his lap he had both hands on the wheel.

LONDON TRANSPORT
BILLPASSENGER TRAFFIC
UNDER UNIFIED CONTROL

(BRITISH WIRELESS SERVICE.)

Rugby, Nov. 29. WHEN the House of Commons went into committee on the London Passenger Transport Bill to-night, the Transport Minister, Mr. Pybis, said the measure was designed to co-ordinate, under unified control and ownership, the passenger traffic of the greatest urban population of the world.

The Bill provided:—
Firstly, for the establishment of a Public Board charged to provide adequate travelling facilities throughout the London traffic area;
Secondly, the vesting in the Board of all local passenger transport agencies in the area except those of main line railways; and

Thirdly, the provision of safeguards and machinery ensuring contact between the Board and public opinion regarding the facilities to be provided and the fares charged.

The Bill also provided for the setting up of a joint committee of the main line railways operating suburban lines.

OXFORD "REDS"

TAUNT MR. WELLS WITH "SNOBBERY"UNDERGRADUATES WHO PLAY AT COMMUNISM

Mr. H. G. Wells was called "a snob," and his views were derided as "bunkum," by undergraduates after an address he gave to the Oxford University October Club, a Communist organisation.

He had to listen for two hours to attacks on the views he had expressed, one of which was that Western Communism, different from that in Russia, should be established.

Warning Against Russia.

"Do not be too greatly hypnotised by Russia," he said. "The problem for the new spirit in the West is whether to go on to a complete breakdown, or whether to begin now attempting to construct a new order, and to use as much of the tradition and methods of the old as was wholesome."

"I am no believer in apeing Russian revolutionary ideas. I am quite sure that we can produce more ideals, organising capacity and (Continued on next column.)"

OIL CONCESSION
DISPUTEHOPE IT WILL END
AMICABLY

(THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY.)

LONDON, Nov. 30. IT is understood that if Persia persists in unilateral denunciation of the Anglo-Persian oil concession, the British Government may give the matter serious consideration.

The cancellation is considered to be ultra vires in official circles. It is hoped, however, that the discussions between the Company and the Persian Government will end amicably.

educational powers than Russia.

"I do not believe that Russia has the monopoly of directive intelligence."

"Conditions have changed now. We are living in a system which is in a state of rapid collapse. Profit-seeking industry, which had established a working system, is going to break up, and that makes the problem of revolutionary organisation different to-day."

Dangerous Mr. Wells.

The end of his speech was the signal for a two-hours' torrent of oratory from his audience.

One speaker declared that there had never been more dangerous stuff heard than that night. Another said that Mr. Wells was a snobish and never knew what privation was.

"Bunkum," was another taunt thrown at Mr. Wells.

After several references to class warfare, Mr. Wells declared, "With your claptrap phrases of class warfare, you are standing in the way of reconstruction."

Later Mr. Wells exclaimed: "God knows what sort of a world you have in mind. I would ask you what your alternative is."

Disillusioned With "H.G."

Another speaker, a Canadian, said that he had read Mr. Wells' books. "Having listened to his speech to-night, I am not so proud of his books as I was. To come here and have a gentleman of Mr. Wells standing to speak for some minutes very sweetly about the situation as if there were no hunger-march going on and an imaginary proletariat—there is justification for our indignation."

At the end of the meeting Mr. Wells said that he had thoroughly enjoyed his experience.

THE CORINTHIANS' JUBILEE

FOUNDER'S APPEAL TO PUBLIC SCHOOL BOYS

The Corinthian Football Club, founded 50 years ago, and famed for its motto "to play for the game itself," celebrated its jubilee at a dinner at the Dorchester Hotel, London.

The chief guest was the founder, Mr. N. L. Jackson, who is now 83. Two other guests were Mr. E. C. Bembridge and Mr. C. Holden White, who were present at the meeting at which the club came into being.

Mr. R. T. Squire, an international against Scotland in 1893, presided over a large company, which included amateur players famous in the various periods that have remarked the club's progress.

Mr. Jackson, replying to the principal toast, expressed the hope that the club would never join the Football League. It would, he said, be contrary to the principles of the club, and he would rather see it go down with flag flying.

He appealed to all Public School boys and amateur clubs in general to rally round and do everything possible to save the club, and suggested the formation of a golf section.

Giants of Days Gone By

Mr. Jackson paid special tribute to several of the giants of days gone by, including "Billie" Moon and Charley Bembridge. No matter if they won or lost, he said, they were never downhearted.

The Chairman, in giving the toast of the evening, stated that one of the most remarkable features of this remarkable club was that it had carried on through 50 years with over 500 members and yet had only seven rules.

Sir Frederick Wall expressed regret that the public schools were dropping Association football, and suggested the formation of a public schools and old boys' football association.

Representatives were present from the Belgian, French, South African, Danish, and Swedish football associations, and from the Grasshoppers Club of Zurich, Queen's Park, old rivals, were represented by their President, Mr. F. J. McConachy, and Mr. Alec Hamilton.

Tennis was represented by Mr. Gandar-Dower and Mr. Roper Barrett; and cricket by Mr. R. W. V. Robins, Mr. W. T. Gresswell, Mr. Miles Howell, Mr. J. H. Lockton, and Mr. D. J. Knight.

RUGBY FOOTBALL

MEDWAY'S POOR SHOW

Due to a weak team fielded, H.M.S. Medway was disastrously beaten at Happy Valley yesterday, by the Hong Kong Rugby Club's XV.

Medway's team was outplayed in all departments of the game, and the result is that the Rugby Club scored 31 points (6 goals 2 tries) to nil against them.

"REVOLUTION OR REFORM?"

LORD MELSCHETT'S ABLE BOOK

NEED FOR PARLIAMENT OF INDUSTRY

"Revolution or reform?" is the keynote of a remarkable book on modern financial and economic problems by Lord Melchett, published under the title "Modern Money" (Martin Sack).

Lord Melchett, whose father, the first Baron, was responsible for the famous Melchett-Turner conversations, is a director of Imperial Chemical Industries, Anthracite Collieries, Barclays Bank, and many other companies.

Coupled with a scathing attack on present-day methods, Lord Melchett makes interesting proposals for:—

A new double-currency system; Payment of the National Debt; Settlement of the American Debt.

The creation of an "Economic Council with supreme control in industrial and financial matters."

"The whole monetary scheme," Lord Melchett declares, "is not only unsound but unworkable. It presupposes a regular continuance and static condition of trade. This does not exist."

False Assumptions.

"It presupposes that politicians will always finance soundly. Centuries of experience prove this to be untrue."

"It presupposes that stock markets will demonstrate a true condition of affairs in their present condition of organisation whereby members make most money when the public gamble."

"It also presupposes that there will be enough gold to go round, which there isn't."

"It is further founded on the idea that central bankers are omniscient and for ever watching world commodities and industrial positions, of which in fact they know nothing and can know nothing, for they are busy banking."

"Our system is so ill devised that, as a result, not less than 20,000,000 civilised, honest, skilled men and women are enduring the horrors of unemployment. Those who presume to take the responsibility for the management of the world's affairs must not fool themselves, because of the result of England's 1931 election or the 1932 Convention, that the human race will for ever tolerate their folly."

"It is not only our duty to reform the economic system, but if we do not, the people will make themselves responsible. That way lies disaster."

New Double Currency.

Lord Melchett suggests, as the basis of the double currency, the sovereign note to be used for internal purposes and the pound sterling for foreign exchange. Legal tender would be up to £1,000 only in sovereign notes, and above that a guaranteed cheque on any of the ten clearing-house banks.

The issuable amount of this currency would be determined only by the demand for it, that is, the security at the disposal of those who desired to use it.

The pound sterling would be issued by the Bank of England only to banks in amounts of not less than £10,000 in return for sovereign credits, and would be based on gold. The notes would be exchangeable for gold at three months' notice, and would have to be increased at the rate of some 3 per cent. yearly to allow for the natural increase in trade.

Side by side with the double currency, Lord Melchett proposes the creation of a national discount corporation, which would be guaranteed credit by the Government. This corporation would grant domestic currency against securities on a fixed scale.

Paying the Debts.

Lord Melchett claims that Government loans could be gradually paid off in the new internal currency.

With regard to the American debt, Lord Melchett makes the remarkable proposal that all we can do is to offer to transfer some of our many Pacific or West Atlantic possessions to the American people.

Supreme Economic Council Lord Melchett develops the plan for an Economic Supreme Council, which he put forward in a recent speech.

The Council would decide and co-ordinate the economic functions of the nation, and would decide questions of credit and currency. All industrial, financial, and economic questions, such as unemployment insurance, the limitation of the working day, retail prices, and reorganisation of industries would be settled by the Council.

"It does not go as far as either Italy or Russia," he says. "But while preserving full political liberty and well-tried institutions, it creates upon that foundation an effective machine which combines the whole of the financial, industrial, commercial and economic ability of the nation."

"If this ability is not sufficient to solve our economic problem, 'what good will and good sense' then nothing but revolution or industrial decay (which must inevitably lead to revolution) can result."

UNDERWRITERS IN CONFERENCE

STRENGTHENING "JOINT HULL AGREEMENT"

Our Marine Insurance Correspondent writes: A very important meeting was held in the Library at Lloyd's, at which the London and Liverpool marine insurance companies were fully represented as well as practically every Lloyd's underwriter interested in the insurance of ships' hulls, as distinct from cargo. The purpose of the meeting was largely to discuss the future policy of the market, particularly with regard to what is known as the "Joint Hull Agreement."

This agreement, which has now lasted for about twenty years, has for its purpose the prevention of certain undesirable forms of competition, such as, for instance, the cutting of the rates quoted by the recognised market leaders.

Lately some apprehension has existed because under the sustained pressure of shipowners there have been indications of certain weaknesses. Since underwriters have suffered very serious losses on hull insurance until quite recently it was feared that any substantial concessions would result in a further period of unprofitable business.

The meeting was private, but in an interview immediately after its conclusion, Mr. E. L. Jacobs, underwriter of the Alliance Insurance Co., Ltd., who presided, stated that problem there had been a general consensus of opinion to maintain and strengthen the existing agreement. He added that the matter had been referred back to the Joint Hull Committee, on which both Lloyd's and the marine companies are represented.

Mr. A. B. Stewart, chairman of Lloyd's Underwriters' Association, who took a large part in the proceedings, stated that among the matters considered was the apprehension felt at the increasing value of commodities. It may be recalled that at the recent Baden-Baden conference of the International Marine Insurance Union, the chairman of the Hull Committee (Mr. Walter Schues) professed pessimism with regard to the outlook because he feared that with rising commodity values repair costs would increase, while there was a tendency to reduce insured values.

BRAINS TEST BEFORE MEANS TEST

ENSURING BRIGHT SECOND- ARY SCHOOL PUPILS

A "brains test" to precede the Board of Education's suggested "means test" in deciding the right of entry into secondary schools is the main feature of a scheme to be urged on the Government by the Association of Education Committees, which represents 200 out of the 508 Committees in England and Wales.

Lord Irwin, President of the Board of Education, discussed the scheme with Alderman Rowlinson, the President, and officials of the Association, and promised to give it earnest consideration.

The Association urged that, as the education of every secondary school scholar, whether "free place" or "fee-paying," is subsidised, a standard entrance test should be imposed on every child to ensure as far as possible the entry of the best type of scholar.

It was contended that the combined effect of the education "means test" and the limitation of the number of "special" (scholarship) places would increase the number of duller scholars whose parents' ability to pay was their primary claim to admission.

hension felt at the increasing value of commodities. It may be recalled that at the recent Baden-Baden conference of the International Marine Insurance Union, the chairman of the Hull Committee (Mr. Walter Schues) professed pessimism with regard to the outlook because he feared that with rising commodity values repair costs would increase, while there was a tendency to reduce insured values.

FIRST OF HER RACE TO UNVEIL

GLAMOUR OF THE EAST BROUGHT TO LONDON.

Mme. Zohra Haidary, the first Persian woman who had the temerity to unveil and reveal her beautiful face, has come to London. She is travelling all over the world seeking ideas for the encouragement of Persian handicrafts.

She is a woman who combines the decorative qualities of the East with cosmopolitan chic. Usually she wears smart European clothes, but when alone she loves to change into Persian costume.

She greeted me in her hotel in Persian pyjama trousers of purple and flame-coloured chiffon. On her feet were the pliable red Persian slippers, slightly turned up at the toes. Each arm carried groups of bracelets of old hammered silver inlaid with mount jewels.

She married a Russian, whom she saw killed during the revolution. She herself was imprisoned, to be transported to Siberia. It took the whole weight of Persian Government influence to release her.

"They Love Blondes."

In the middle of our conversation she suddenly leaned forward and said, "You must never go to Persia. You would be kidnapped and taken to 'anderun' (the Persian harem). They love blonde women there."

"Yes, we still have the 'anderun'—the most sacred of places—and it will be a long time before they vanish. Now we do not wear the veil, and we can go about the streets with our husbands; but that is very, very recent."

"I want Persian women to become educated, but I am afraid we will change too much. We still have our peaceful life, our gardens, our nightingales, our wonderful roses; but there is a restlessness in the air."

"But we have learned a philosophy, which you women of the West either never knew or have forgotten. It is that a woman who wants to rule and influence will always do so, whether she is in a harem or on a platform."

"ECONOMIC conditions notwithstanding, I'm coming around again to cast my spell of fun and happiness over the land. Now is the time for you merchants to stock well your shelves, for since the world began none have been able to resist the infectious spirit and gaiety of Christmas. MEATLESS MEALS PROVIDE VARIETY ON OCCASION

A vegetarian requested a list of a few wholesome appetizing dishes that might serve as the main dish for lunch or dinner. The study of vegetables and their valuable properties is indeed quite fascinating and it is well worth your while to delve into the unknown world and put meat and fish and fowl out of your mind for a while.

A change is always good for the best of us. You would be surprised at the great number of tempting combinations that you could concoct, with a little imagination thrown in for good luck. You might even go so far as to discover to your utmost surprise, that meat twice a day, every day, in the week could quite easily be left out. Nuts, cheese, eggs and fruits along with the wealth of fresh and dried vegetables offer us an abundant source of valuable properties, when prepared to perfection.

Have your cook try out some of the following well tried recipes.

rot, celery, pepper, mushrooms, tomatoes and seasoning. Simmer till the vegetables are tender, about 25 minutes, then add the peas. Drain the spaghetti, arrange it in the center of a warm platter, pour the sauce containing the vegetable over and sprinkle thickly with the grated cheese.

EGGPLANT EN CASSEROLE

1 good sized or three or four medium sized eggplants.
1 teaspoon salt.
3 sliced onions.
1 teaspoon pepper.
1 cup coarse crumbs.
3 tablespoons butter.
3 medium sliced tomatoes.
1 cup grated cheese.
Cut the eggplant in small pieces and fry slowly in butter. Remove the skin if desired, however, if the vegetable is tender, this is not necessary. Place in a casserole with alternating layers of the tomato, onion, and cheese, seasoning each layer; cover with cheese mixed with coarse crumbs, dot with butter, and bake minutes in a hot oven. Serve in the dish in which baked.

TOMATO CHEESE RAREBIT

1 tablespoon minced onion.
1 tablespoon butter.
1 cup stewed or chopped fresh tomatoes.
1/2 teaspoon soda.
1/2 teaspoon dry mustard.
2 tablespoons butter, additional.
2 tablespoons flour.
2 cup rich cream or rich milk.
2 cups chopped American cheese.
1 teaspoon salt.
1 teaspoon paprika.
Buttered Toast or Crackers.
Fry the onion in the butter until yellow, add the tomatoes and seasonings, cook three minutes, and strain. In the meantime, prepare the sauce by melting the butter and adding the flour, milk and cheese. Add soda and beaten egg to the tomato, combine the mixtures, cook a minute, and serve on toast.

SPAGHETTI TALLIAN, VEGETABLES

2 pound spaghetti.
3 tablespoons butter.
1 cup olive oil.
1 clove garlic.
1 minced green pepper.
1 cup cooked peas.
1/2 cups sifted canned or stewed tomatoes.
1/2 cup sliced onion.
1/2 cup finely chopped celery.
1/2 cups mushrooms, sliced.
1/2 teaspoon salt.
1/2 teaspoon paprika.

GRATED PARMESIAN CHEESE

Put the spaghetti on to cook in boiling salted water without breaking, using plenty of water or soup stock. Melt the butter, add the oil, the garlic and onion minced fine, fry until yellow; add the car-

TOMATOES A LA NAPLES

6 medium sized tomatoes.
6 tablespoons chopped cooked bacon.
1 onion chopped.
Salt and pepper to taste.
1/2 teaspoon minced parsley.
1/2 teaspoon oil.
1/2 cup soft bread crumbs.
Grated cheese and coarse bread crumbs.
Wash tomatoes, scoop out the centers and chop. Combine with the onion, oil, allspice and crumbs, season to taste with salt and pepper, and put back into the tomato shells. Place in buttered muffin pans with a teaspoon of hot water by each, cover with the crumbs and cheese, mixed, and bake 20 minutes in a moderate oven. Serve with brown or white sauce.

Home Made Sweetmeats

Butterscotch.
Ingredients.—One pound custer sugar, 1/2 cup fresh butter, two tablespoons golden syrup, two dessert spoons vinegar.
Method.—Put the sugar, butter, and treacle into a saucepan (iron is the best), add a little water, and stir slowly. Pour in the vinegar when the mixture begins to boil. Time to boil about three-quarters of an hour.

Turkish Delight.
Ingredients.—One pound loaf sugar, 1/2 cup gelatine, half pint water, and flavouring.
Method.—Dissolve the sugar slowly in a quarter of a pint of water, and add to it the gelatine dissolved in the other quarter of a pint. Let them boil for twenty minutes, then add the flavouring.

Pour into a tin rinsed out with cold water. When set turn out, cut into squares or oblongs, and cover all with equal portions of patent cornflour and icing sugar mixed together, about one tablespoon of each; for colouring pink add a little cochineal.

Cream Walnuts.
Ingredients.—One pound of icing sugar, one tablespoon of cold water, one white of an egg, a few drops of vanilla essence, 1 lb. shell-walnuts.
Method.—Break egg gently and separate white from yolk, place white of egg in a basin, and add the water. Mix these together and gradually sprinkle in the sugar.

Mould the mixture into small balls and place half a walnut on each side and set aside to harden.

TWO SCOTS DISHES

Haggis.
I have been asked to give my recipe for Scotch Haggis, and include it here as a seasonable suggestion for high tea:—

Wash a sheep's paunch well in cold water, then just plunge it into hot water and scrape thoroughly on both sides. Cut it into the number of bags you think you will require, and sew these up—remembering that a little haggis goes a long way. Three bags would make 3 good-sized haggis.

Wash in salted water the liver, heart and tongue of a sheep, and boil slowly for 1 1/2 hours; then drain cut up, removing all uneatable parts such as gristle, and put good meat through the mincer. Prepare 1 lb. finely chopped suet, 2 lb. onions, scalded and chopped finely; 1 lb. oatmeal, toasted golden brown. Mix these ingredients with the minced meat, adding pepper and salt to season strongly, a pinch of nutmeg and of mace, and moistening all with stock in which meat was cooked. Dry the bags and three-fourths fill them with mixture, sew up, and prick skins well with a fork. Put haggis into boiling water—with a plate at bottom of pan—and simmer for at least 2 hours, pricking skins now and again. Drain, and serve on a folded table napkin.

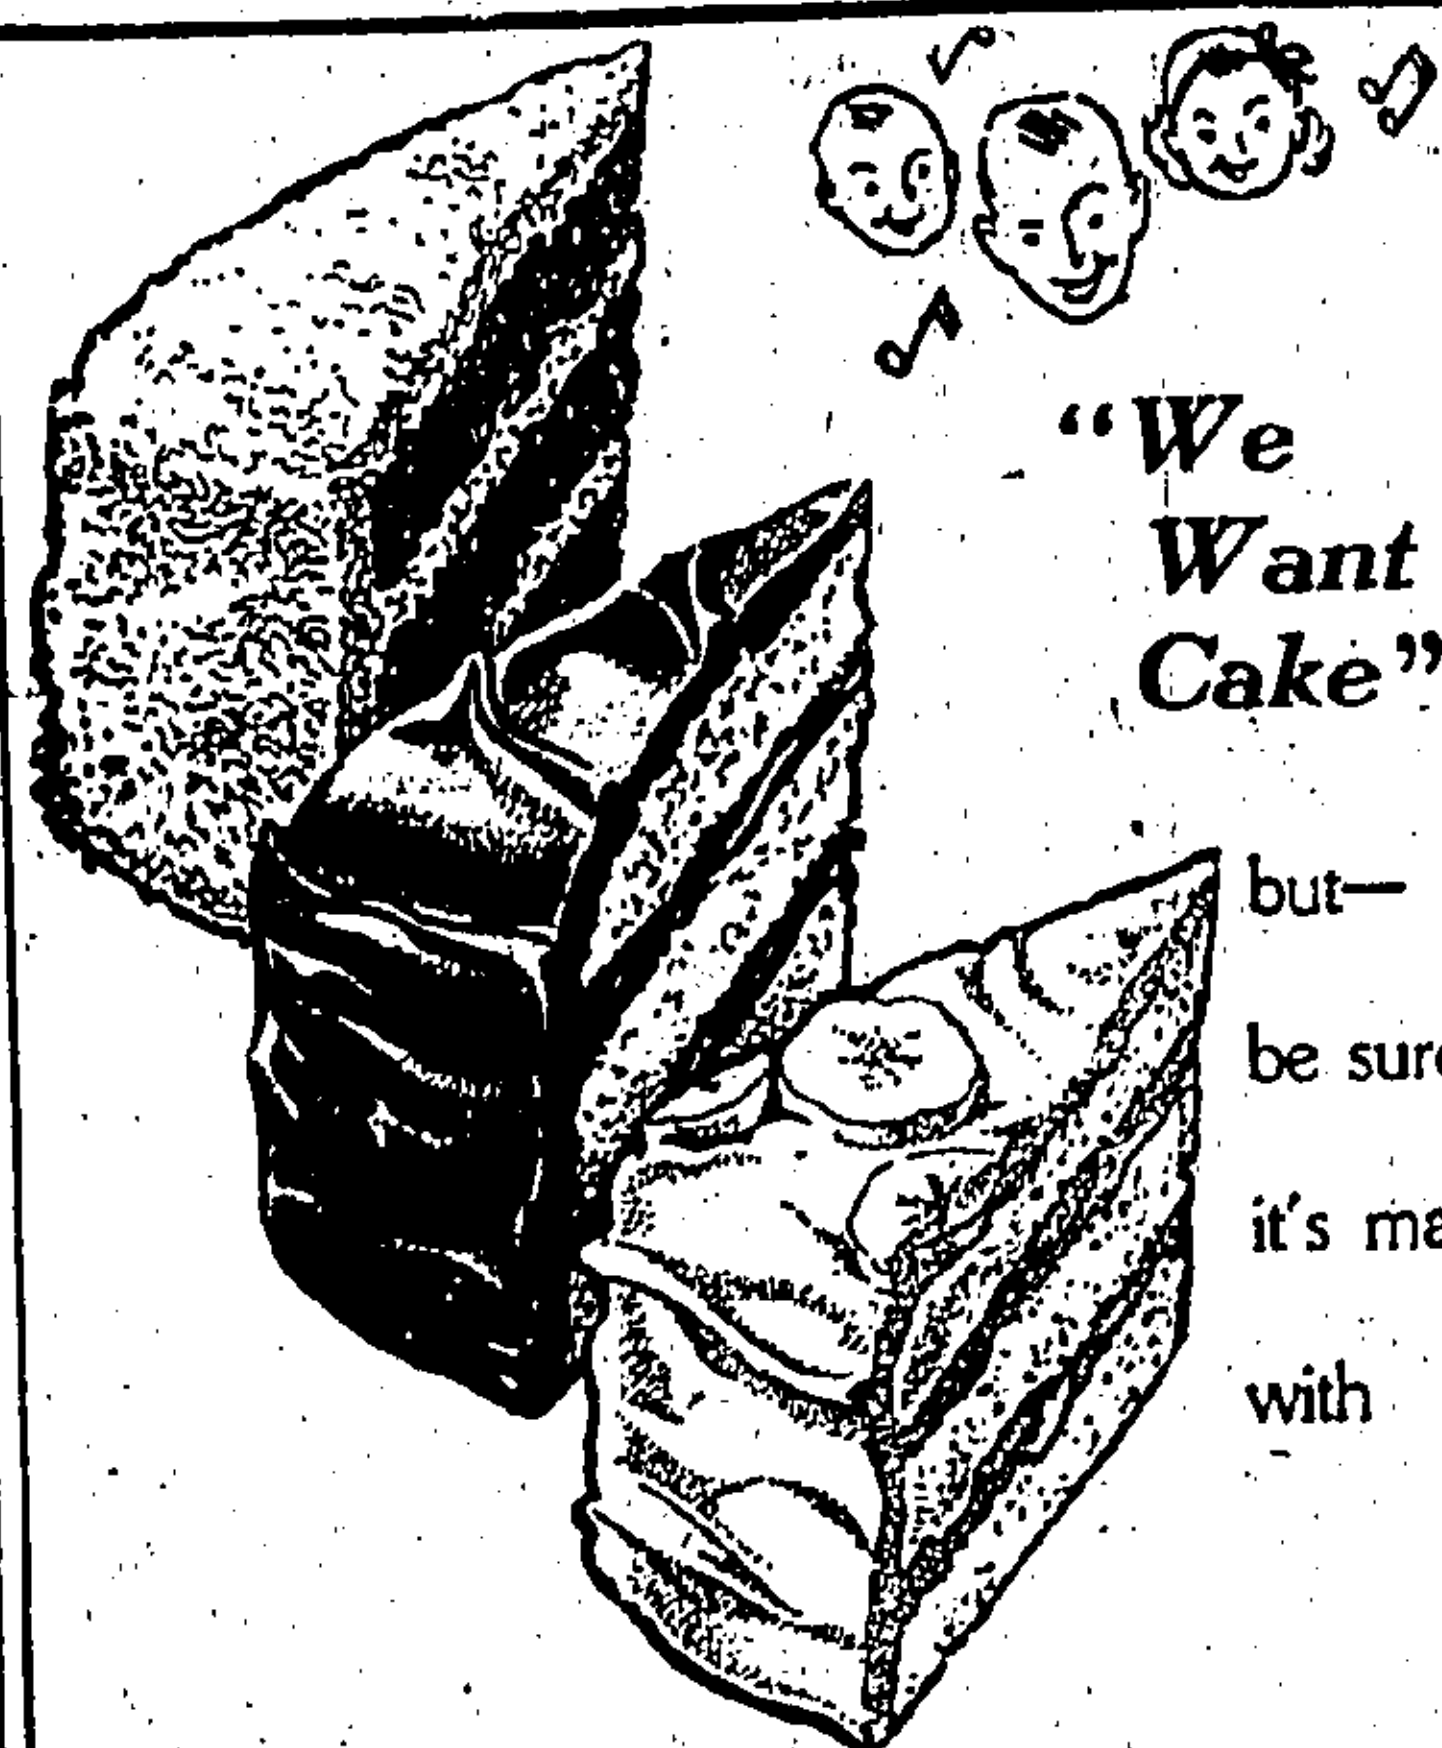

The haggis you do not use at once will keep for a few days, and will only need re-pricking and re-boiling for a short time when required. This dish must always be

"MANUFACTURING" A CIGARETTE?

MAN WHO MAKES THEM FROM STUBS

CURIOUS SUMMONS AT CENTRAL MAGISTRACY

An interesting and novel argument was raised in Mr. Wynne Jones' Court yesterday when a Chinese was charged by Revenue Officer Davidson with manufacturing cigarettes without a manufacturer's license and with selling them.

It was stated that when the defendant was arrested he had two ounces of tobacco and 38 cigarettes in his possession. His Worship was informed that the defendant was rolling cigarettes by hand from tobacco extracted from stubs.

R.O. Davidson said a retailer's license cost about $30 but that of a manufacturer more.

His Worship: But a manufacturer makes more than 38 cigarettes. R.O. Davidson said these people picked up cigarette ends and re-made them.

His Worship held that it would be unfair to compare the defendant's business with that of a retailer. He should be dealt with in the same way as an unlicensed hawk.

For selling without a license a fine of $4 or four days' hard labour was imposed.

As to the first charge, the Magistrate asked:—If I buy my own tobacco and roll my own cigarettes, am I manufacturing without a license?

R.O. Davidson: If you sell them. The Magistrate's Cigarettes.

His Worship: The charge does not say selling. It says manufacturing.

R.O. Davidson: He is not making them for his own consumption. He is making them for sale.

His Worship: The charge doesn't say selling. Am I going to suffer from this charge too if I roll my own cigarettes?

Inspector R. Shannon: It would be rather absurd, your Worship.

His Worship: That just came to my mind. If you don't run me in, why should you run him (defendant) in. I don't make my own cigarettes, incidentally.

R.O. Davidson pointed out that the cigarette dealers were suffering from the competition of men like the defendant.

His Worship remarked that he did not think there was much competition.

Inspector Shannon replied that there was a lot of such competition, especially in Gutzliff Street.

Unhealthy.

R.O. Davidson: Another thing, it is unhealthy.

His Worship, after looking up the Ordinance, pointed out that it mentioned manufacturing tobacco, not cigarettes.

R.O. Davidson: Rolling cigarettes is also manufacturing tobacco.

His Worship: Can you manufacture tobacco twice over?

R.O. Davidson: It has to be manufactured into cigarettes.

His Worship: That's not what the section says. If it says no person can manufacture cigarettes or cigars it would be a different matter. I think I shall have to discharge him. I may be wrong.

The defendant was discharged on the first count.

THE PENINSULA HOTEL

The Australian Girl artists, the sisters Misses Lane and Marie Maye, are delighting audiences nightly at the Peninsula Hotel Rose Room Dinner Dances. In addition to being talented dancers both possess highly pleasing singing voices, and their amusing sketches provoke unrestrained laughter and approbation.

On Saturday night they are again giving an entire change of numbers from their repertoire, which appears to contain an unlimited variety of entertaining features.

More than 100,000 Japanese officers and men who participated in the Manchurian and the Shanghai "emergencies" are to be rewarded for their meritorious services soon, says the "Osaka Mainichi," when the investigations to be opened next spring by the authorities of the Japanese Award and Decoration Bureau are completed. In conjunction with the Ministry of War and Navy, the bureau officials are planning to officially decide their fundamental policy for the rewarding of distinguished services of the men with the colours in the near future, after the recognition of the deeds of those who gave their lives in completed.

ENGLAND'S TASTES IN MEAT

INVESTIGATIONS IN ALL AREAS

MARKETING BOARD'S ENTERPRISE

Jack Spratt could eat no fat, His wife could eat no lean— and the Empire Marketing Board are hoping to find out why. They are just beginning the first extensive investigation ever held of our national and local taste in meat. Among the questions they are asking are these:

Which districts favour beef, or pork, or mutton?

Where and when is fat or lean meat preferred?

How do week-ends and seasons affect public taste for meat?

What joints and cuts are preferred in various regions?

In which areas is the market for home-grown and Empire meat capable of rapid expansion?

The method of investigation is the result of five years' experience in studying the market conditions of butter, canned fruit and vegetables, eggs and cheese.

Skilled investigators are given those regions in which to select a representative and numerous list of meat-purveying shops of every kind. They question each retailer on the list, individually, and compile the results.

Retailers' Co-operation.

Hitherto, retailers have shown real eagerness to co-operate, an official of the Empire Marketing Board told a London Morning Post representative. "The results, also, have much importance for producers."

"The report of the Reorganizing Committee for Pigs and Pig Products actually suggests the investigation we have just begun."

We know from previous studies that different parts of the country may have very different tastes. Birmingham and the North-east have a passion for tomatoes, but the mild south taste is typified by London's preference for peas.

Glasgow dislikes canned apricots, and South Wales has a special affection for pears. London and the South ask for pineapple and peaches.

"Eventually we hope to investigate the marketing prospects for every retail product of importance to home and Empire producers."

Blackburn.—It was surely the world's most fastidious thief who removed the Coronation Cup, won by Solario, from Blackburn Museum. To suggest that he stole it would be to indulge in a vulgarism of which one feels he would disapprove.

The police are quite sure that Raffles came to Blackburn with the object of lifting Solario's cup, and with that object alone. He knew exactly where to find it, and he ignored all sorts of other treasures in the museum.

His method of approach showed care and deliberation. He entered a yard at the back of the room where the trophy was displayed, climbed on the roof, and detached a window-frame just large enough to admit him.

He then removed an iron grille from a door which barred his progress, and cut a large pane of glass out of it. He did this in sections, laying each piece very carefully on the top of a cupboard near by, after which he climbed through the opening.

His next act was to remove the cup from its case. (This, being of glass, was also cut up in sections.) There was a gold inscription plate on the base of the cup. This he removed, before placing the base carefully behind a row of books.

Then, putting the cup on a pair of scales he had brought with him from another room—by Raffles forgot nothing—he weighed it carefully.

But he must have been disturbed at the dust his clothing had collected by now, for he looked round for a brush, and having found one, evidently used it before departing.

The final act of Raffles cannot yet be described, as no one knows how he got away, or when, with his trophy, which is of eighteen carat gold and insured for £200.

Blackburn Libraries Committee, which controls the museum, is going to hold an emergency meeting about it.

That the members of the Central Executive Committee of the Kuomintang, now assembled in Shanghai, including Mr. Sun Fo, should immediately proceed to Nanking to attend the Third Plenary Session so as to present a united front against foreign aggressors is the gist of a circular telegram issued by the special Tanguu of the 20th Division of the Chinese Army.

ONLY RELATIVE RELATIVITY

COLONEL LYNCH'S NEW "REBELLION"

Colonel Arthur Lynch, doctor, psychologist, engineer, and mathematician, the man who commanded the Irish Brigade against England in the South African War; who was sentenced to death for high treason; who in the dark days of Irish Nationalism was the staunchest of the Nationalists; yet at the end of the Great War was a colonel in the British Army—has led one more rebellion.

In "The Case Against Einstein," he pursues the creator of Relativity with as wide a battery of mathematics, philosophy, and psychology as the most deadly combination which he can have employed in other warfare.

He reminds the scientific world that the original experiment on which the whole of Relativity has been raised is uncertain both in its results and in its interpretation, that the men responsible for it have not accepted Einstein's explanation, and that some of the greatest mathematicians in Europe have rejected his theory.

And then typically, he turns round to shout authority, declaring that even if all the thinkers he had cited were on the side of Einstein, being "formed on grounds deeper than any advanced in the theory itself."

Shaw and Einstein.

Paradox, the nominal acceptance by professors of what they do not understand, the delight of the public in new wonders, and Einstein's Jewish nationality, are cited by Colonel Lynch as among the reasons for the current supremacy of Relativity.

The paradoxical character of his statements has been as much a cause of Einstein's fame," he writes, "as it has been of that of George Bernard Shaw, and an attentive, dispassionate examination of the facts has convinced me that in both cases the main factor has been the same."
